RATED 4.0 India is a land of diverse cuisines characterized by its sophisticated and shrewd use of ingredients and cooking techniques reflecting the country's unique blend of cuisines. If someone decides to have one per day, he/she might end up eating a new dish every day for years. Be that as it may, what never changes though is that one food item an Indian eats after the meal. Some say it helps in digestion, some say it is a refreshment (after a meal!! Wut?), or some magical mouth freshener/sweetener or just a reason to showcase their artistic talent by decorating public properties with red color. ...
